Inaugural Function Lighting the Lamp

Prof. P. Somaraju in his inaugural address stressed the importance of good teaching practices to students of any branch more so to medical students. He also appealed all the faculty of GVP Medical College to serve as ideal role models both as a doctor and a good human being.

Prof. B. Subba Rao, in his message traced the history of medical education and the various developments in medical profession. He felt that somewhere down the line there is an increase in commercial approach so that the medical profession too has become an industry. He hoped and wished that this trend would reverse and doctors become more humane, apart from being good professionals

Dr. Y. Gayatri Devi, in her message explained the purpose of CISP workshop and the commitment needed for a successful conduct of the same.

Thirty (30) participants from Pre, Para and Clinical specialties took part in the 3 day workshop.

The participants took active part in discussions and group activity, rising doubts and seeking clarifications regarding various issues in the implementation of the Curriculum.

The sessions mainly interactive in nature were conducted by Curriculum Committee Members.
